

The Ontario Institute for Cancer Research (OICR) is pleased to present the research community with a series of upcoming events to highlight our research services and technology offerings.

Collaborative Research Resources information sessions

OICR's Collaborative Research Resources (CRR) provides expertise, advice and access to research services on a cost-recovery basis. Researchers can benefit from OICR's high-end technology infrastructure, world-leading research knowledge, high-quality services and support at each stage of their project's development process. These information sessions will showcase the capabilities from the CRR teams followed by a Q&A session.
